This city in South Georgia has long welcomed visitors looking for thrill rides, animal encounters and sporting. Nicknamed the "Azalea City," Valdosta has also been named ESPN's Title Town, home to college sports. The city was settled in 1860 as a stop along the railroad and continues to be a popular destination for travelers on I-75. -Explore Georgia

About Southwell

In 2019, Tift Regional Health System restructured to grow its services and expand its geographic footprint. A new system name, Southwell, was adopted.

Tift Regional Medical Center in Tifton, Southwell Medical in Adel, and the system's 35+ physician practices located throughout the region are now linked together with the Southwell brand.

Though there's a new name for our overall system, we are still comprised of the same great people. We remain a locally-operated not-for-profit healthcare institution.
